An Overview

FAR

The Occupational Therapy program is a graduate, three-year program, accredited by the Accreditation Council for Occupational Therapy Education (ACOTE)* of the American Occupational Therapy Association (AOTA). Applicants must have a Bachelor's Degree in addition to the prerequisite coursework and must complete the Stony Brook supplemental application. Upon successful completion of the program, graduates receive an Entry-level Doctorate in Occupational Therapy Degree.

Occupational Therapy graduates will be able to sit for the national certification examination for occupational therapists administered by the National Board for Certification in Occupational Therapy (NBCOT).

Information Sessions

An overview of the occupational therapy program and the prerequisite requirements for admittance is presented at our information sessions. Information sessions are held via ZOOM. Refer to our website for schedules and reservation instructions.

Occupational Therapy helps people live life to its fullest. It does this by helping people of all ages who have suffered an illness, injury or some form of debilitation relearn the skills of daily living. By focusing on the physical, psychological and social needs of its patients, OT helps people function at the highest possible level, concentrating on what's important to them to rebuild their health, independence and self-esteem.

Occupational therapists are specially trained and credentialed in the field and rely on evidence-based best practices and science-driven data to constantly improve patient outcomes. In an era where consumers increasingly want to be empowered and maximize life's potential, more and more people are recognizing the value of occupational therapy. As a result the field is expected to grow significantly over the coming years. (AOTA, 2008)
